Ikorodu Deserves Better

Nine promises. Each one names who has to act, what it costs, and how you check it.

1,320 MEGAWATTS. Nigeria's largest power station stands in Ijede. The light it makes travels to Lagos. The town beside it sits in darkness.

Our markets carry trade at national scale. Our industrial estate supplies factories across this country. The road through our town is a federal road. Ikorodu already pays in.

So this is not a request for charity. It is a claim for the return on what we already give.

You have been promised enough. What follows is arithmetic. Where something is mine to deliver, I say so. Where it needs Abuja, or Alausa, or the local government, I say that too, because a man who promises you what he cannot give has already decided to disappoint you.

Nine promises

Nothing here is a slogan. Each promise carries the thing that delivers it.

01 Egbin's 5% belongs to Ijede

Since 2024 the law has required every power company to set aside 5% of its running cost for its host community. No one in Egbin, Ipakan or Ebute Olowo has been shown the figure, the trustee or the account. I will not promise you this money. I will demand the account for it, publish whatever comes back, and sponsor the amendment that gives the law the teeth it was written without.

MINE TO DEMAND · LAW ALREADY PASSED

02 Scholarships for 1,000 children

₦50,000 each for a thousand high-achieving primary school pupils, paid from my own allowances and carried year on year rather than handed out once. Criteria published in advance. A panel with head teachers on it. No ward lists and no queues.

MY OWN MONEY · ABOUT ₦50M

03 The Ikorodu Food Pantry

A standing pantry funded by public, private and foreign partners, registered with a board and independently audited. Not a campaign handout in a branded bag, but an institution that still feeds people long after the election is forgotten.

PARTNERS · REGISTERED AND AUDITED

04 ₦1,000 an hour

A minimum wage of ₦1,000 an hour, which is ₦160,000 a month on a forty-hour week, with a mandatory thirty-minute break. Only the National Assembly can set it, so I will sponsor it in Abuja and press the Governor to adopt it in Lagos first, in state pay and in state contracts.

NATIONAL ASSEMBLY · I SPONSOR AND FIGHT FOR IT

05 Ten refrigerated vans a year

Cooperative buying and a cold chain our own markets own. Traders buy in bulk and sell for less, and food stops rotting between the farm and the stall. Ten vans a year, said plainly, because fifty announced at once is four years of the entire constituency budget spent on one thing.

CONSTITUENCY ALLOCATION · PHASED, THEN TRADER-OWNED

Nine promises

Six to nine: health, work, our own news, and credit for the people who trade here.

06 Ten health pods

Equipped across Ikorodu, Ijede first, each with a written Lagos State staffing commitment before it opens, because a room full of equipment and no nurse is a photograph, not a clinic. Free screening on the last Friday of every month.

I EQUIP, LAGOS STATE STAFFS · TEN

07 Work for young people

Placement into the federal programmes that already exist and already go unclaimed because nobody fills the forms. A drone academy built around the NCAA licence, so the certificate is worth something. Yindy Films headquartered here, hiring Ikorodu crews for Ikorodu work.

MINE, AND THE OFFICE'S · EARNINGS PUBLISHED

08 Ikorodu TV

Our markets, our commerce and our news, reported at last. And a sanitation watch that films the same dumpsite every week and asks on camera which office was meant to clear it.

MY OWN MONEY · INDEPENDENT EDITOR

09 Credit for our traders

Registration, bookkeeping and bank introductions so that associations of traders, artisans and merchants can borrow as organisations. The facilities already exist. What is missing is the paperwork, and that is fixable.

I CONVENE · BANKS LEND

BEFORE A SINGLE VOTE

A hospital. Not a promise.

In Ijede, on ground my family has called home for generations, the Ayinde Memorial Medical Centre opens in November 2026, four months before you vote. Same-day urgent care, chronic disease management, an on-site lab and pharmacy, and same-day transfer to Lagos State hospitals when more is needed. Named for my late father, Ademola Razaq Ayinde. Built with my own money.

All four are privately funded by me. None is a government project and none is paid for with campaign donations. Many candidates promise hospitals. Few finish one before the campaign begins.

THE MANIFESTO · 02

How you check me

The mechanisms, and an honest account of what is not mine to command.

A report every quarter

Written and filmed, in plain language. Sixteen across the term. If sixteen do not appear, you have your answer without needing anyone to explain it.

A town hall every year, in every LCDA

Not a rally. A room where you ask and I answer, in each LCDA of this constituency, at least once a year.

An open finance dashboard

Every constituency project with its contractor, its budget and its completion date published before the work starts, not after it fails.

Casework, counted

A standing constituency office that helps you claim what is already yours: pensions, student loans, registration. Cases opened and closed, published.

What I will fight for, and what I cannot command

NEEDS THE NATIONAL ASSEMBLY

A ₦1,000 an hour minimum wage. ₦50,000 a year paid directly to Nigerians living in poverty, which costs about half of what we save annually on fuel subsidy. A food pantry in every one of the 8,809 wards, funded by statute so no party can hand out your own money and call it a gift. The Social Assistance Bill and the Social Welfare Service Bill.

These need my vote and three hundred and fifty-nine others. I will sponsor them, argue for them, and publish how I voted every quarter.

BELONGS TO STATE AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Primary healthcare. Waste collection. Ward security committees. These are not federal functions, and any candidate who tells you he will deliver them from Abuja is either mistaken or counting on you not to know.

What a federal legislator can honestly do is fund, convene, press and publish. So I will equip the health pods and let Lagos staff them. I will not instruct another tier of government, and I will not claim to.

Hunger relief is national policy. It will never be a local handout from my hand, because that is not generosity. It is vote-buying, and it is against the law.

THE RECALL PLEDGE

If 30% of registered voters in this constituency sign a recall petition at any point during my term, I will resign without contesting the process.

THE MANIFESTO · 03

And your part

NO PVC, NO POWER

A vote you cannot cast is a voice nobody has to answer. Find your registration area, collect your card, and know where you are voting before the day arrives. Our ward coordinators will walk you through it.

682 polling units · 19 registration areas · Ikorodu

682 EYES FOR DEMOCRACY

Every polling unit needs one trained pair of eyes. Send your ward and phone number on WhatsApp and we will add you to the group, with training before election day.
